New labour codes: Trade unions plan nationwide protests

SARITA CHAGANTI SINGH & MANOJ KUMAR
Mumbai, November 22

TEN LARGE INDIAN trade unions condemned the government's rollout on Friday of new labour codes, the biggest such overhaul in decades, as "deceptive fraud" against workers.

The unions, aligned with parties opposing Prime Minister Narendra Modi, demanded in a statement late on Friday that the laws be withdrawn ahead of nationwide protests they plan to hold on Wednesday.

The Centre government implemented the four labour codes, approved by parliament five years ago, as it seeks to simplify work rules, some dating back to colonial rule, and liberalise conditions of employment. It says the changes improve worker protections.

While the new rules offer social security and minimum-wage benefits, they also allow companies to hire and fire workers more easily.

Unions have strongly opposed the changes, organising multiple nationwide protests over the past five years.

Dialogue among govt employers and workers essential: ILO

Sajji Praveen Chowdary, director, Policybazaar for Business said making annual health checks mandatory for employees above 40 years marks an important shift in how organisations view workforce well-being. As the long run, this alignment of policy and proactive health management will benefit both employers and employees alike.
